RAILROADS ENJOINED.

Missouri Circuit Court Orders them to Obey Two Cent Passenger Rate.

Kansas City, Mo., June 15.—Upon application of Attorney General Hadley, circuit court Judge Parker yesterday issued orders upon the representatives here of eighteen principal Missouri railroads, compelling them to obey the two-cent passenger rate and the maximum freight rate bills which went into effect last night. This brings the circuit court into conflict with the United States district court, before which the railroads are suing for an injunction to prevent the state officials from enforcing these laws.

When the case of the railroads was called before Federal Judge McPherson today he ordered it postponed until tomorrow. The court said that in the meantime orders restraining the state officials from enforcing the acts in question will continue in effect.

The cases brought in the circuit courts, against the railroads operating out of Kansas City, are cited to appear and make reply on June 18.

W. C. T. U.

This space belongs to the W. C. T. U., and they are responsible for what is in this space.

We have preached against the saloon and we have preached well. We have prayed against the saloon, and we have prayed with fervor. We have written against the saloon, and there has been logic in our sentences. We have wept in the presence of the denizens of the saloon, and our tears have been sincere. But the day is coming when we will do more—a day when our sermons and prayers and arguments, and heartaches and tears will crystallize into ballots, and when, by the iron hand of prohibitive law, this red-lipped monster shall be throttled and choked and hurled back into the hell from which he came!—Bishop Joseph F. Berry.

It is true that every soul alone is responsible for itself before God for the acceptance of rejection of God's proffered salvation; but it is not true that the tempted man will be held responsible for the uninvited attacks of temptation which stronger men ought to have kept from him. For the failure, those who make up the Christian church will have to answer.—Sunday School Times.

Well Water is Impure.

Bennington, June 15.—The village of North Bennington is considerably disturbed over the reports that have been received from the state laboratory in relation to its water supply. Samples of water from 15 different wells were forwarded and the reports that came back were that there were evidence of past and present pollution in every instance. The village has no water system and the large majority of the houses are supplied from wells. Among the sample that showed the presence of pollution were those from the well on the common from which a large number of people in the immediate vicinity secure their water for domestic purposes, and also the well which supplies the pupils of the schools. There is already one case of typhoid in town.

Money.

The first standard of value consisted of cattle, peccus; hence the word pecuniary. The earliest coin bore the stamp of an ox or sheep, as, for instance, the "gold sheep" and "gold lamb" of ancient France. Actual money has been made of various metals, of leather and even of pasteboard. The first coinage of money is ascribed to the Lydians.

NAME OFF LISTS.

Mrs. Hetty Green Quits Bellows Falls.

Brattleboro, June 17.—Mrs. Hetty Green has ceased to be a resident of Bellows Falls. This announcement is made by the letters of that town, which have just returned to the town clerk the figures for the grand list.

The richest woman in America will no longer contribute toward the maintenance of that corporation exempt through the meager taxes which she pays on her real estate. Heretofore she has paid taxes in Bellows Falls on personal property amounting to $110,000.

By reason of her withdrawal as a resident the personal list has fallen off $25,000, where as if she had remained it would have increased $55,000.

FALLING OFF A BICYCLE.

Mark Twain's Story of the Way He Established a Record.

It seems a good while ago. I must have been rather young for my age then, for I was trying to tame an old fashioned bicycle nine feet high. It is to me almost unbelievable at my present stage of life that there have really been people willing to trust themselves upon a dizzy and unstable altitude like that, and that I was one of them. Twichell and I took lessons every day. He succeeded and became master of the art of riding that wild vehicle, but I had no gift in that direction and was never able to stay on mine long enough to get any satisfactory view of the planet. Every time I tried to steal a look at a pretty girl or any other kind of scenery that single moment of inattention gave the bicycle the chance it had been waiting for, and I went over the front of it and struck the ground on my head or back before I had time to realize that something was happening. I didn't always go over the front way. I had other ways and practiced them all. But no matter which way was chosen for me there was always one monotonous result—the bicycle skinned my leg and leaped up into the air and came down on top of me. Sometimes its wires were so sprung by this violent performance that it had the collapsed look of an umbrella that had had a misunderstanding with a cyclone. After each day's practice I arrived at home with my skin hanging in ribbons from my knees down. I plastered the ribbons on where they belonged and bound them there with handkerchiefs steeped in lotions and was ready for more adventures next day. It was always a surprise to me that I had so much skin and that it held out so well. There was always plenty, and I soon came to understand that the supply was going to remain sufficient for all my needs. It turned out that I had nine skins, in layers, one on top of the other like the leaves of a book, and some of the doctors said it was quite remarkable.

I was full of enthusiasm over this insane amusement. My teacher was a young German from the bicycle factory, a gentle, kindly, patient creature with a pathetically grave face. He never smiled; he never made a remark; he always gathered me tenderly up when I plunged off and helped me on again without a word. When he had been teaching me twice a day for three weeks I introduced a new gymnastic—one that he had never seen before—and so at last a compliment was wrung from him, a thing which I had been risking my life for days to achieve. He gathered me up and said mournfully, "Mr. Clemens, you can fall off a bicycle in more different ways than any person I ever saw before."

—From Mark Twain's Autobiography in the North American Review.

Licking Postage Stamps.

Licking postage stamps is a common practice, but it should be avoided. Aside from the disease germ theory, the habit is certainly not a cleanly one. It is better and safer to use a damp sponge. Although it is said that care is taken in preparing the mailpieces that is put upon postage stamps, it is impossible to insure perfect health of the persons who handle them, and often in this way disease is carried.
